E-Books and the User: in the Library, on the Desktop and on the Device

The London Book Fair, Earls Court

11 April 2011

16:00 – 17:00, The Cromwell Room

London, UK

Overview

Books for scholars and students are now usually made available in digital form but are no longer only to be downloaded from a web site within the higher and further education institutions. Publishers and librarians are taking note of the wishes of their patrons to access the book content on their laptops and on other reading devices. A panel composing a publisher, a librarian and an academic user has been put together to explain what they are doing and what they want and where the future lies.

Moderator

- Anthony Watkinson, Senior Lecturer, Department of Information Studies, University College London

Panel

- Hannah Perrett, Director Digital Partnership Sales, Academic and Professional Books, Cambridge University Press
- Kate Price, Head of E-Strategy & Resources, University Library, University of Surrey, Guildford
- David Ashford, Lecturer, Department of English, University of Surrey, Guildford

Admission is free, but advance registration is required for the London Book Fair.

Panel sponsored by STM - the International Association of Scientific, Technical and Medical Publishers
