

Statement on Document Delivery to Qualifying Institutions under the Research4Life
Programme in United Nations-Designated Least Developed Countries
7 October 2013, updated 4 March 2014

An STM Position Paper
(and authorized by the signatory publishers below)

On 4 July 2013, STM issued a revised Statement on Document Delivery (at http://www.stm-assoc.org/2013_07_04_STM_Statement_on_Document_Delivery.pdf), in which it re-iterated its support for free access to STM journal articles by qualifying institutions in least developed countries as determined by the United Nations under the Research4Life programme. The STM member publishers which are signatories to this Statement wish to extend this benefit to all document deliveries carried out by themselves or by their licensees or distributors to institutions registered by Research4Life in those least developed countries.

Each publisher which is a signatory to this Statement hereby notifies all public libraries and libraries affiliated to educational institutions which are open to the public and those registered institutions served by the Research4Life programme in least developed countries identified by the United Nations that deliveries of journal articles to those registered institutions may be carried out free of royalties or copyright fees which may otherwise have been due to it, on the terms and conditions set out in this Statement.

- Research4Life is a public-private partnership of the WHO, FAO, UNEP, WIPO, Cornell and Yale Universities and the International Association of Scientific, Technical & Medical Publishers, and the collective name for the four programmes – HINARI, AGORA, OARE and ARDI – which provides developing countries with free or low cost access to academic and professional peer-reviewed content online - www.research4life.org/about/.
- “Least developed countries” are the countries determined by the United Nations from time to time, for so long as they are determined as such.
- “Registered institutions” are not-for-profit institutions located in least developed countries and which are registered with Research4Life, for so long as they are so registered.
- In order to avail themselves of this benefit, persons undertaking deliveries to registered institutions, whether directly or through an intermediary, may not charge the registered user for anything other than the direct cost in reproducing and delivering the copy, and must require of the receiving institution that they will deal with the copy on the same terms and conditions as their licence with Research4Life, namely that the copy is not to be used for commercial purposes and that the copy is not to be passed on to others.
- Consent of the signatory publisher for any delivery to a registered institution under this benefit, or any other form of rights clearance, is not required.

As at the date of this Statement, the least developed countries determined by the United Nations and which are referred to herein are (country and date of inclusion on the list):
